

First Session Thirteenth Parliament Republic of Trinidad and Tobago

REPUBLIC OF TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Act No. 11 of 2025

[L.S.]

AN ACT to establish the offence of home invasion and, in that context, to provide that a person has no duty to retreat when acting in self-defence or defence of his property; to provide that a person may use defensive force, including deadly force, to protect himself, his property or another person in his dwelling house; and to provide for related matters

[Assented to 16th December, 2025]

ENACTED by the Parliament of Trinidad and Tobago as Enactment follows:

1. This Act may be cited as the Home Invasion (Self- Short title Defence and Defence of Property) Act, 2025.

Commencement

2. This Act shall come into operation on such date as is fixed by the President by Proclamation.

Interpretation

3. (1) In this Act—

“associated place” means—

(a) any place that is used exclusively in connection with, or for purposes ancillary to, the occupation of a dwelling house; or

(b) any place, where a dwelling house is one of two or more dwelling houses in one building or group of buildings, that occupants of the dwelling houses use in common with each other;

“curtilage” in relation to a dwelling house means an area immediately surrounding or adjacent to the dwelling house, which is used for purposes connected with human habitation in conjunction with the dwelling house regardless of whether the area—

(a) is surrounded by a fence, a natural boundary or a combination of both; or

(b) is enclosed in a manner that indicates the occupant’s intention to keep persons off his property, but does not include any other part of the area that is a public place;

“deadly force” means any use of force that is likely to cause or creates a substantial risk of causing death or grievous bodily harm, including, but not limited to, the discharge of a firearm;

“defensive force” means the justifiable and reasonable use of force by a person acting in self-defence, in defence of property or in defence of another person;

“dwelling house” includes—

- (a) any structure or part of a structure whether permanent or temporary and whether fixed or capable of being moved which is designed or adapted for use as a dwelling or residence;
- (b) any adjacent land, building or other structure within the same curtilage as a dwelling house and occupied for the same purpose;
- (c) any boat, ship or other vehicle in or on which a person resides, which has been designed or adapted for use as a dwelling or residence; or
- (d) an associated place, and it is immaterial if the dwelling house is from time to time uninhabited;

“enters” in relation to a dwelling house, means any intrusion by a person or an instrument they control—

- (a) across the threshold or opening of a dwelling house; or
- (b) into the curtilage, or into an associated place, of a dwelling house, and that person obtains entry—

- (c) without lawful justification or excuse;
- (d) by a threat or a deception; or
- (e) by collusion with a person within the dwelling house;

“explosive device” means an explosive or incendiary weapon that is designed or has the capability to cause death, serious bodily injury or substantial material damage;

Chap. 16:01

“weapon” includes anything which is used, designed to be used, intended for use, adapted or altered for use, in order to cause physical harm or damage;

(2) For the purposes of this Act—

- (a) a reference to a dwelling house includes a reference to the curtilage of the dwelling house;
- (b) a person enters a dwelling house as soon as any part of his body or any part of an instrument that he uses is within any part of the dwelling house; and
- (c) a person who carries out a home invasion may act on his own or in the company of one or more persons.

4. Subject to the provisions of this Act, an occupant of Application of Act a dwelling house has—

- (a) no duty to retreat from a home invader at the dwelling house; and
- (b) the right to stand his ground and use, or threaten to use, defensive force to protect himself, another person or his property from a home invader.

Home invasion

5. (1) A person commits the offence of home invasion if he—

- (a) unlawfully enters an occupied dwelling house when he knows or has reason to know that one or more persons is present in the dwelling house;
- (b) unlawfully enters a dwelling house and remains therein until one or more persons is present in the dwelling house;
- (c) fraudulently represents himself to be a member of a law enforcement authority, or a representative of any other public or private entity, for the purpose of gaining entry into an occupied dwelling house;
- (d) is invited into an occupied dwelling house and fails to leave immediately on being asked by an occupant to do so; or
- (e) enters an occupied dwelling house and then forms the intention to commit a serious criminal offence, and—

- (f) while armed with a weapon intimidates, uses force or threatens the imminent use of force on any person within the dwelling house, whether or not injury occurs;
- (g) while armed with a firearm or an imitation firearm, intimidates, uses force or threatens the imminent use of force on any person within the dwelling house, whether or not injury occurs;
- (h) intentionally causes any injury, including grievous bodily harm or death, or commits a grievous sexual assault or rape, of any person in the dwelling house;
- (i) steals any property with or without the use of intimidation, threats or violence;

- (j) damages or destroys any property with or without the use of intimidation, threats or violence;
 - (k) intimidates, uses force or threatens the imminent use of force on any person within the dwelling house, whether or not the injury occurs, and during the commission of an offence discharges a firearm or detonates an explosive device; or
 - (l) discharges a firearm, detonates an explosive device or uses a weapon that causes grievous bodily harm, permanent disability or permanent disfigurement to any person within the dwelling house.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), a person who commits an offence under subsection (1) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and to imprisonment for twenty years.

(3) A person who commits an offence under subsection (1)—

- (a) acting as a gang member;
- (b) as a participant in an organised criminal activity; or
- (c) in the presence of a child, senior citizen, person with a disability or otherwise vulnerable person, is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars and to imprisonment for twenty-five years.

(4) Where a person kills or is party to the killing of another in the course of carrying out the offence of home invasion he, and any other person engaged in the course or furtherance of the commission of that offence, is liable to be convicted of murder even if the killing was done without intent to kill or intent to cause grievous bodily harm.

Self-defence

6. (1) Subject to section 9, an occupant has no duty to retreat and has the right to stand his ground against a home invader and use, or threaten to use, defensive force against the home invader where the occupant—

(a) honestly believes—

(i) that force was being used against him or another person or that a threat of force was being made against him or another person; or

(ii) that his life, or the life of another person, was in immediate danger or threat of danger;

(b) believes that his actions were necessary and reasonable in order to defend or protect himself, or another person, from the use or threat of force; and

(c) believes that the defensive force used was proportionate to the threat he honestly believed to exist.

(2) When determining whether the defensive force used was reasonable in the circumstances, the Court shall take into account—

(a) the nature of the force or threat;

(b) the extent to which the use of force was imminent and whether there were other means available to respond to the potential use of force;

(c) the occupant's role in the incident;

(d) whether any party to the incident used or threatened to use a weapon, firearm, or an explosive device;

(e) the size, age, gender and apparent physical capabilities of the parties to the incident;

(f) whether any party to the incident is a person with a mental disorder within the meaning of the Mental Health Act;

- (g) the nature, duration and history of any relationship between the parties to the incident, including—
 - (i) any prior use or threat of force, and the nature of that force or threat; or
 - (ii) whether either party ever applied for, or obtained, an Order against the other in accordance with the Domestic Violence Act;
 - (h) any history of interaction or communication between the parties to the incident;
 - (i) the nature and proportionality of the occupant's response to the use or threat of force;
 - (j) whether the occupant acted under a mistaken belief of imminent threat or use of force and the mistake was a reasonable one to have made;
 - (k) whether there was a possibility that the occupant could have safely retreated;
 - (l) that, having regard to the circumstances, an occupant acting for a legitimate purpose may not be able to weigh, to a precise degree, the exact measure of any necessary action;
 - (m) whether the occupant did what he honestly and instinctively thought was necessary for a legitimate purpose; and
 - (n) any other compelling factors based on the circumstances of the case.

Chap. 45:56

(3) For the purposes of this section the use of deadly force may be justified where an occupant honestly believes that using or threatening to use such force is reasonably necessary to prevent imminent death, grievous bodily harm, grievous sexual assault or rape to himself or another person.

Defence of property

7. (1) Subject to section 9, an occupant has no duty to retreat and has the right to stand his ground against a home invader and use, or threaten to use, defensive force against the home invader or do anything else that he honestly believes to be necessary—

- (a) to prevent a home invader from entering his dwelling house;
- (b) to cause a home invader who is in his dwelling house to leave the dwelling house;
- (c) to protect his property or the property of another person from theft, damage or destruction by a home invader; or
- (d) to prevent a home invader from committing, or stop a home invader from committing, a serious criminal offence in his dwelling house.

(2) Where—

- (a) a part of a building is a dwelling house in which an occupant resides;
- (b) another part of the building is a place of work for the occupant or another person who also resides in the dwelling house; and
- (c) that other part referred to in paragraph (b) is internally accessible from the first part, that other part, and any internal means of access between the two parts, are each treated for the purpose of subsection (1) as a part of a building that is a dwelling house.

(3) For the purposes of this section, it is immaterial—

- (a) whether a belief is justified or not if it is honestly held, but in considering whether an occupant using defensive force honestly held the belief, the Court shall have regard to the presence or absence of reasonable grounds for the occupant so believing and all other relevant circumstances;

- (b) whether the occupant using the defensive force had a safe and practicable opportunity to retreat from the dwelling house before using the defensive force concerned.

(4) For the purposes of this section the use of deadly force may be justified where an occupant honestly believes that using or threatening to use such force is reasonably necessary to prevent or remove a home invader from his dwelling house, or to protect his property or that of another person.

(5) For the avoidance of doubt, a reference in this section to “property” includes, unless the context otherwise requires, a reference to a dwelling house.

8. For the purposes of sections 6 and 7, it is lawful for Person assisting occupant a person—

- (a) acting in good faith in aid of an occupant during a home invasion; or
- (b) who acts on the direction of an occupant during a home invasion, to use the same degree of force against a home invader that an occupant may reasonably use.

9. (1) Sections 6 and 7 do not apply where— Exceptions

- (a) a person against whom force is used or threatened has the right to be in, or is an occupant in the dwelling house;
- (b) the degree of force used by an occupant, or a person assisting an occupant, is grossly disproportionate in the circumstances;
- (c) the occupant, or a person assisting an occupant, who uses or threatens to use force, is engaged in criminal activity or is using the dwelling house to further criminal activity;
- (d) the person against whom the force is used or threatened is a member of a law enforcement authority who enters or attempts to enter the dwelling house in the lawful execution of his duties;

- (e) the occupant, or a person assisting an occupant, who uses or threatens to use force knew or reasonably should have known that the person entering or attempting to enter the dwelling house was a member of a law enforcement authority acting in the lawful execution of his duties; or
 - (f) the mental faculties of an occupant, or a person assisting an occupant, who uses force were, at the time of the alleged offence, substantially affected by the voluntary consumption of a drug which is not therapeutic.
- (2) For the purposes of this section a drug is considered to be therapeutic where the drug is—
- (a) prescribed by, and consumed in accordance with the directions of, a medical practitioner; or
 - (b) of a kind available, without prescription, from a pharmacy and is consumed for the purpose recommended by the manufacturer and in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions.
